Joe-Dan Farm offers breeding deal to leading sire Hey Chub

Joe-Dan Farm has announced that breeders can breed their mare to Hey Chub during the 2019 breeding season for no fee and, if the resulting foal is born in New Jersey, the breeder will receive $500.

Hey Chub, a 19-year-old son of Carson City out of Donna Doo, by Spend a Buck, was a multiple stakes-winning New Jersey-bred who hit the board in 30 of his 36 starts and earned $441,755. Hey Chub sired three stakes winners from 19 starters in 2018: Brother Chub, Chub's Charmer and Chublicious, the latter a career winner of 11 of 30 starts, six stakes, including the 2017 Frank J. De Francis Memorial Dash-G3, and $653,393. Hey Chub's 31 lifetime runners have average earnings of more than $101,500.

Contact Daniel J. Lopez at (609) 314-8198 for additional details.

Sunny Ridge honored by New Jersey Department of Agriculture

Dennis A. Drazin's homebred Sunny Ridge, a consistent runner who competed against the top older horses in training, is the New Jersey Department of Agriculture's New Jersey-bred Thoroughbred of the Year for 2018.

The gray/roan son of Holy Bull didn't start his 5-year-old season until April, finishing second in an Aqueduct allowance, was third in the Salvator Mile-G3 at Monmouth Park in May and captured the $100,000 State Dinner Stakes at Belmont Park easily by 3¼ lengths in his next start. He finished the year with on the board finishes in two prestigious races, the Kelso Handicap-G2 and Cigar Mile-G1, losing both races by a combined 2¾ lengths.

Trained by Jason Servis, Sunny Ridge finished 2018 with $241,500 in earnings.

He has won six of 21 career starts, good for earnings of $1,178,902, and is the sixth highest-earning New Jersey-bred runner in history.

Rutgers Equine Science Center announces 2019 Horse Management Seminar topic

“Feeding and Care of Mare/Foal, Stallion, and Growing Horse” is the over-arching theme of the upcoming Horse Management Seminar hosted by the Rutgers Equine Science Center and Rutgers Cooperative Extension. The seminar, scheduled from 8:30 am to 3:45 pm on Sunday, Feb. 10, will feature presentations by several equine experts.

“This year we selected a topic that we have not covered during any of the previous Horse Management Seminars. Even if you don’t currently breed horses, the presentations will have lots of information for everyone!” says Dr. Carey Williams, Extension Equine Specialist and Associate Director of Extension for the Equine Science Center. “Our goal for this workshop is to bring in the leading experts in each of these topic areas. This includes broodmare and growing horse nutrition, care of the stallion, and new reproductive advances. We will also highlight some of the current, and future, research from Rutgers Equine graduate students.”

Williams has assembled presenters who are recognized as the leading experts in their field to offer perspectives and personal insight. The morning will start with “Stallion Care” and “Recent Advances in Equine Reproduction” by Dr. Ed Squires from University of Kentucky’s Gluck Equine Research Center. “Dr. Squires leads the country in his contributions to the field of equine reproduction,” says Williams. “We are honored to have him here at Rutgers, courtesy of Vetoquinol USA.” The morning will also include Dr. Dan Keenan from Foundation Equine, a local veterinarian specializing in equine reproduction. Dr. Keenan will present “Care of the Mare and Foal Pre and Post Birth.”

The afternoon will start off with Dr. Amy Burk, who leads the equine breeding program at the University of Maryland, presenting “Feeding the Pregnant/Lactating Mare,” followed by “GI Development and Nutrition of the Growing Horse” by Dr. Paul Siciliano from North Carolina State University.

Closing out the day will be a panel discussion from the three main speakers, moderated by Dr. Williams. Following the panel Williams’ doctoral student, Jennifer Weinert, will give a short presentation on some of the current research taking place on campus, as well as what future research has been planned.

In addition to these presentations, the seminar will feature informational displays, networking opportunities with industry companies and area organizations, and ample time for one-on-one discussions with the day’s presenters.

The complete program, registration information, and seminar brochure are posted on the Equine Science Center website at esc.rutgers.edu, as well as the registration site at: <http://bit.ly/2019HMS>.

Space is limited. For questions, contact Dr. Carey Williams at (848) 932-5529, carey.williams@rutgers.edu.
